

InComm Announces Minority Investment by Warburg Pincus

NEW YORK and ATLANTA, Aug. 31, 2012 -- InComm, the leading prepaid product, services and transaction technologies company, today announced that Warburg Pincus, a leading global private equity firm focused on growth investing, has made a minority investment in InComm. Terms of the transactions were not disclosed.

InComm was established in 1992 to provide technology to the prepaid long-distance industry. Since that time, the company has grown to become the leading provider of stored value, gift and prepaid products, services and technologies, and has partnered with more of the world's leading retailers and providers than any other company. Its unique point-of-sale-activation (POSA) technology has enabled InComm to consistently introduce new products that address current market needs. As a result, the company has been regularly recognized for its innovation and was recently named the leading prepaid organization and best prepaid product distributor at the 2011 Prepaid Awards.

Brooks Smith, Chief Executive Officer (CEO) and founder, InComm said, "I am excited to partner with a top tier private equity firm such as Warburg Pincus. A key part of our strategy will be to expand internationally and we were attracted to their track record and depth of relationships in geographies such as Asia and Europe. Warburg Pincus' investment in InComm is a testament to the company's performance and our success over the past two decades."

Jim Neary, Managing Director, Warburg Pincus said, "We have been tracking InComm's development over a number of years. The company has an impressive history of innovation and singular focus on delivering for its customers that has fostered a loyal customer base. We are pleased to be partnering with a high-growth market leader and with Brooks and his outstanding team. Building on InComm's leading market position, combined with its diverse network of key retailers and its innovative approach, we believe the company is well positioned for continued success. We hope to support the company's growth both organically and through strategic acquisitions."
